products either for installation, for regulatory purposes or for a voluntary program. This category includes building owners, facilities personnel, government agencies that use a CRRC Product Rating Program or CRRC S100 standard as the basis for regulation, organizations that have green building certification programs or rebate programs, specifiers, consultants, contractors, and building inspectors. This category also includes organizations that provide testing and weathering services for CRRC Licensees (e.g., Accredited Independent Testing Laboratories and Approved Test Farms).

_____ Producers: Individuals that represent entities that produce or sell roofing or exterior wall products, including the associations that represent those companies.

_____ General Interest: Individuals that represent entities that do not use the CRRC Product Rating Programs or CRRC S100 standard and do not produce or sell roofing or exterior wall materials. This category includes independent research organizations, government agencies with an interest in energy or environmental issues (but do not establish or adopt regulations pertaining to cool roofs), non-profit organizations, and other organizations that do not directly profit from roofing product sales but have a general interest in cool surfaces, energy-efficiency, and other related issues.

Restrictions on Use

I authorize the use of my biographical data and bias and conflict of interest information by CRRC for any official use by the CRRC in accordance with the CRRC Standards Committee procedure listed below:

Restrictions on use of the Biographical Record and Potential Sources of Bias and Conflict of Interest Information: Other than CRRC staff, only the CRRC Project Committee Chairs, CRRC Standards Committee, CRRC Technical Committee, CRRC Wall Rating Program Committee, and CRRC Board of Directors shall have access to biographical data and bias and conflict of interest information, which shall be treated as sensitive and confidential material. No person authorized to have access to this data shall use the information for other purposes that fall outside the scope of the CRRC and the CRRC S100 standard update process, and shall not release any information contained therein without the express approval of the person involved. The potential sources of bias and conflict of interest shall be made available by the CRRC Project Committee Chair for viewing by committee members, but may not be copied by any party to which it is shown.
